Since the section of the smaller counties of the state.

Since the advent of prohibition last July the number of prisoners in all jails of the state has fallen far below the average number held in previous years, so it is being suggested that it would be more economical and generally satisfactory to close such jails as the one at Brooklyn and confine such few prisoners as may be taken in Windham county to the jails in Hartford, New Haven and other large centers. The matter is expected to come up for discussion in the legislature. As the state contributes many thousands of dollars each year toward the cost of keeping
